(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE No. I).

£105

A fine copy of one of the rarest of the books printed by the Jesuit Missionaries in China. It is printed throughout in Chinese and Latin, in the Chinese manner, on native paper. The characters are cut on wooden blocks, and the work includes ninety pages, the first of which contains a remarkable frontispiece, consisting of a black ground with the design and letters of the title left in white. The design represents a circle of fire enclosing the sacred monogram I.H.S., together with the Cross and the instruments of the Passion.

Only four other copies of this work appear to be known, two of which are in the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris, and one in the British Museum.

- 1671 A.D. [503] GARCIA RACIMO (Juan). Carta que escrivio el P. Fr., Juan Garcia Racimo, . . . en que da cuenta su Provincial de las cosas sucedidas en las islas Filipinas, Japon y China, y otras partes del Asia, etc.

4 pp., folio, new boards. Madrid, 1671. £15 15s.

Brother Juan Garcia Racimo was a Franciscan friar, born in Quintanilla; he took vows in 1651, and soon was sent to the Philippines. In 1668 the Governor General sent him on a mission to Java, whose king received him very well, and sent him as his ambassador to the Court of Madrid. After fulfilling his commission he went back to the Philippines in 1673, and finally returned to Spain in 1674.

- 1671 A.D. [504] GARCIA (Padre Francisco). Persecucion que movieron los Tartaros en el Imperio de la China contra la ley de Jesu Christo.

Small 4to, half morocco, by Rivière.

Alcala, Maria Fernandez, 1671. £10 10s.

In this account of the persecution of the Catholic Missionaries in China between the years 1664 and 1668, the author, himself a Jesuit, refers to the care with which many of the missionaries had approached the Tartar religious conscience through the medium of the intellect. Knowing that they were addicted to the study of astrology, the Padres assiduously cultivated this subject, studied and mastered the Chinese language, and printed more than 150 books on mathematics and a similar number on philosophy, all in Chinese characters, and astonished their persecutors by their learning.

Padre Garcia gives an account of the infamous punishments inflicted on some of the Padres, and a list of the missionaries who appeared before the Judges in Pekin.

Portuguese; King John of Dongo being positively brazen in his defiance of the Governor of Angola, Francisco de Tavora. There were many difficulties to overcome during this punitive campaign, not the least being the astounding staying power of the natives and the natural conditions which provided plentiful sustenance, as well as other advantages. This Francisco de Tavora was a predecessor and member of the same family as his ill-fated namesake who was a Viceroy of India and eventually tortured to death on a charge of high treason.

Small 4to, 4 pp., half calf, gilt, g. e., by Rivière.

Edinburgh, Andrew Anderson, 1673. £6 6s.

The East-India Company had settled St. Helena in 1660, but soon after the outbreak of war with Holland in 1672 the Island was captured by the Dutch, only to be retaken by Capt. Richard Munden in the "Assistance," with three other vessels, the "Castle" Fireship, the "William and Thomas," and the "Mary and Martha," in May, 1673, whilst convoying the outward bound East-India fleet. Three Dutch East-Indiamen, which called at the island, were also captured.

February 1673 $\frac{3}{4}$ concerning a Treaty Marine to be observed throughout all the World.

And also an Article particularly relating to the English and Dutch East India Companies, Concluded in the year 1674.

Official Manuscript written in a contemporary hand.

268 pp., folio, old calf, gilt. July, 1674. £31 10s.

This Manuscript is of great interest and importance for the History of the East India Trade, as at this time the Dutch maritime power was supreme, and they owned a great number of islands and ports in the East Indies.

The Journal starts with a copy of the Royal appointment of the Commissioners by King Charles II to meet with the Commissioners deputed by the States General of the United Provinces, to draw up the terms of a new Marine Treaty, concerning trade with the East Indies.

Full particulars are given with the Minutes of the Meetings of the Commissioners at Fishmonger's Hall, London, between July, 1674, and February, 1675.

At the first meeting of the Commissioners it was decided that they should "first proceed upon the Treaty Marine and then upon the business of the East

Small 4to, old vellum. Madrid, Juan Garcia Infançon, 1680. £15 15s.

Salva (No. 3764) mentions, but did not possess this, the first edition, of this work, which describes the missionary's travels from Spain to India and other parts of Asia. His itinerary included Paris, Rome, Venice, Constantinople, Russia, the Caspian Sea, Persia, Afghanistan, India, Malay, the Philippines, and New Spain; whence he returned to Spain, to place his account of all he had witnessed, in the hands of his king, Charles II. He appends a brief statistical account of the Chinese Empire; and there are, in addition, several sonnets addressed to the author.

Pedro Cubero y Sebastian was born at Fresno, Zaragoza, circa 1640; and, having studied theology and jurisprudence at Salamanca, and philosophy at Saragossa, was elected doctoral prebend of Tarazona. He was authorized by the Congregation of Propaganda Fide to use the title of apostolic preacher, and to preach the gospel in Asia, etc. At the age of twenty-five he became preacher to the Imperial army in Hungary against the Turks; and soon after, set out upon his world tour, which lasted nine years. He was the first traveller to make a journey round the world from West to East, travelling by land whenever possible. He died in 1696.

- 1680 A.D. [532] Reparos Historiales Apologeticos . . . propuestos de parte de los Misioneros Apostolicos del Imperio de la China. Representando los descuidos, que se ha publicado en Madrid, en grave perjuizio de aquella Mission.

Small 4to, original vellum.

Pamplona, Tomás Baxtan. Circa 1680.

£5 5s.

This work was privately printed for the Chinese Missionaries in reply to the "Tratados Historicos" of Navarrete, a Dominican, over the disputes with the Pope concerning their work in China. Towards the end is included the latest unpublished information with regard to the recent persecution in China against the Christians, with a short chronological account of that Kingdom, and other historical curiosities up to the year 1677.

Salva, No. 3357. Palau's Manual, V, 87.

This work is practically a summary, in Spanish, of Joao de Barros' Decades of India, and other histories of the Portuguese in the Far East, from the time of the Infante Henry the Navigator to Philip III. There are chapters on Portuguese commerce in the Moluccas, and a description of the Indian and African coasts, the natural history, and customs of the people, the discovery of New Guinea, and particulars concerning Japan, Ceylon, Malacca, etc.

THE EARLIEST ACCOUNT OF CEYLON IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

- 1681 A.D. [536] KNOX (Robert). An Historical Relation of the Island Ceylon, in the East Indies: together, with an account of the Detaining in Captivity the Author and divers other Englishmen now living there, and of the Author's Miraculous Escape. By Robert Knox, a Captive there near Twenty Years.

Engraved folding map of Ceylon and 15 engraved plates.

FIRST EDITION. Folio, original calf.

London, Richard Chiswell, 1681.

£8 8s.

Robert Knox was a Scotch commander in the East-India Company's Service. In 1657 he sailed with his father to Fort George, and on the return journey was forced by a storm into the harbour of Cottiar Bay, Ceylon, where he, his father, and fourteen others were made prisoners and carried into the interior. He remained a prisoner at large for nearly twenty years, travelling about as a hawker, when a chance came of getting away, and he escaped to the Dutch Settlement of Aripo on the N.-W. Coast, was sent to Batavia and thence to England, where he wrote an account of his adventures. He afterwards had a very successful career in the East India Company's Service. "His book, which is both delightful and trustworthy, is the first account of Ceylon in the English language."

1681 A.D. [537] RODRIGUEZ De SAA Y MENEZES (Juan). Rebelion de Ceylan y los progresos de su conquista.
4to, half calf. Lisbon, Antonio Craesbeeck de Mello, 1681. £8 15s.

1681 A.D. [538] PHILOPATRIS. A treatise wherein is demonstrated,
I. That the East India Trade is the most national of all Foreign trades.
II. That the clamors, aspersions, and objections made against the present East India company are sinister, selfish, or groundless.
III. That since the discovery of the East Indies, the dominion of the sea depends much upon the wane or increase of that trade, . . .
IV. That the trade of the East Indies cannot be carried on to national advantage, in any way than by a general Joynt Stock.
That the East India trade is more profitable and necessary to the Kingdom of England, than to any other Kingdom or nation in Europe.
Small 4to, half calf. London, 1681. £5 10s.

1682 A.D. [539] LUDOLPH (Job). A New History of Ethiopia. Being a Full and Accurate Description of The Kingdom of Abessinia, vulgarly, though erroneously called the Empire of Prester John. In Four Books.
With many large engraved plates of animals, plants, etc.
FIRST EDITION. Large Paper Copy. Folio, original calf.
London, Printed for Samuel Smith, 1682. £6 6s.

1682 A.D. [540] A True Account of the Burning and Sad Condition of Bantam in the East Indies; in the war begun by the Young King against his father and of the great and imminent danger of the English factory there in a letter from a Member of the factory, to a friend in London by the last ship; which arrived on Saturday the 23rd of this instant, September, 1682.
2 pp., folio, half calf. London, 1682. £5 10s.

A British factory, or trading station, was established at Bantam by Captain Lancaster in 1603, but the English were driven from their factories by the Dutch in 1683.

- 1682 A.D. [541] LITHGOW (John). Lithgow's nineteen years' travels through the most Eminent Places in the Habitable World.

Containing an exact description of the Customs, Laws, Religion, Policies, and Government of Emperors, Kings, and Princes, also of the Countries and Cities, Trades, Rivers, and Commerce in all places through which he travell'd. Also an account of the tortures he suffered under the Spanish Inquisition, by Racking, and other Inhuman Usages, for his owning the Protestant Religion. Together with his Miraculous deliverance from the Cruelties of the Papists, which far exceeded any of the Heathen Countries, herein largely described.

With 7 curious woodcut plates of the Author and his tortures, etc.

Small 8vo, original calf. London, John Wright, 1682. £3 10s.

Lithgow's celebrated travels were made through Italy, Greece, Turkey, Palestine, Syria, Egypt, Spain, Tunis, etc. "In spite of its absurd euphuistic style, where 'ruvidous vulgarity' stands for common people, and 'ovile flockes' for sheep, it is a book of uncommon value and interest, for its descriptions of men and manners even more than of places. Thus it is probably one of the earliest authorities for coffee-drinking in Europe, Turkish baths, a pigeon-post between Aleppo and Bagdad, the long Turkish tobacco-pipes, artificial incubation, and the importation of currants from Zante to England, 'where some liquorous lips forsooth can now hardly digest bread, pasties, broth, and bag-puddings, without these currants.'"

MARTYRDOM OF A MEXICAN INDIAN IN JAPAN.

- 1683 A.D. [542] BALTHASSAR DE MEDINA (Fr.). Vida, Martyrio, y beatificacion del Invicto Proto-Martyr del Japon, San Felipe de Jesus, Patron de Mexico su Patria, Imperial Corte de Nueva España en el Nuevo Mundo.

Title printed in red and black.

FIRST EDITION. Small 4to, original vellum.

Mexico, por Juan de Ribera, 1683. £25

Medina (Imprenta en Mexico), No. 1287. St. Philip de Jesus was a Mexican Indian, who entered a Religious Order and was sent as a Missionary to the Philippines; and afterwards to Japan, where he was one of the twenty-six Proto-Martyrs. Balthassar de Medina, his Biographer, was historian of Mexico.

Not in Tavera.

Brother Juan Garcia Racimo was a Franciscan lay-friar, born in Quintanilla; he took vows in 1651, and soon was sent to the Philippines. In 1668 the Governor General sent him on a mission to Java, whose king received him very well, and sent him as his ambassador to the Court of Madrid. After fulfilling his commission he returned to the Philippines in 1673, and finally went back to Spain in 1674, where he remained.

Owing to persecution the Protestants of Hungary rose under Emeric Tekeli and attacked the Imperial forces. They subsequently asked for Turkish help, and the Grand Vizier Kara Mustapha joined them, and siege was laid to Vienna. Sobieski, King of Poland, drove them back, and saved Vienna and recaptured various places, finally obliging the Turks to retreat. The Turks, instead of blaming the Grand Vizier, the real cause of their defeat, laid the blame on Tekeli and he was taken a prisoner to Constantinople. This report tells of the recapture of various cities by General Caraffa, and of the incarceration of Tekeli.

This work contains an historical study of the art of navigation, shipbuilding —“proving that the inventors of ships have been the most famous monarchs, princes and heroes”; a study of the tides throughout the world; winds in general, and those on the Pacific and Atlantic Coasts of America in particular; variations of the compass; and other matters relating to navigation. The folding tables gives particulars of the winds.

This edition was printed at the expense of the King of Spain, to whom the work is dedicated.

The author wrote other geographical, mathematical and nautical works, some of which, however, do not seem to have been published.

Francisco de Seixas, or Seijas y Lobera, was a distinguished Spanish navigator and cosmographer. Born at Mondoñedo, he began his travels at an early age, and studied in particular mathematics, cosmography and languages. About the year 1662 he accompanied the French Ambassador Tavernier on his special mission to the Great Mogol; and visited China two years later; passing the Moluccas, and the Strait of Lemaire from the Pacific to the Atlantic on his way back. He then made a long voyage to China and Siam in a mercantile fleet, and took possession of one vessel as his share of the profits. In command of this vessel, he undertook another commercial tour in Europe and the coast of Guinea; proceeded to Lima in 1697, by way of Costa Rica and Panama, and made a special study of metallurgy for the purpose of increasing the output of precious metal in the mining districts of Peru. He studied with the most learned men of his day, and was much respected for his own learning. He compiled an original atlas with the principal ports in the whole American continent, which he mentions in one of the preliminary leaves in this item, but it was apparently never published.

He spent the latter part of his life in Paris, and died after 1704.

£5 5s.

This work is divided into two parts, the first contains an account of the first voyage of the "Compagnie des Indes orientales" to Madagascar, and gives many particulars concerning the affairs and developments of the company; the second part relates to this company's expedition to the Indies in 1666, the voyages of Caron and Delahaye, and all the happenings which led up to the abandoning of Madagascar. The two parts contain much important material for the history of the French trade with the East Indies, and many accurate details concerning Madagascar.

The opening chapters of the second part describe the voyage from France to Brazil, and give accounts of Pernambuco and Olinde; the Inhabitants of Brazil, their manners and customs, animals and fruits of the country; Present condition of the Governor of Brazil, his imprisonment by the Portuguese; feeling against the French. Two chapters also describe a visit to the Cape of Good Hope.

Relates to various voyages to Senegal, Cape Verde, Cape of Good Hope, Madagascar, and various parts of India, especially Surat, Calicut, and Goa. During one voyage the author was taken prisoner by an English vessel and imprisoned at Carisbrooke Castle in the Isle of Wight, and also at Winchester. He was taken to London and describes the scene just after the great fire, and also mentions seeing Cromwell's head stuck on a lance over the entrance to London Bridge. On another voyage a brief stay was made at Pernambuco, Brazil.

Dellon, a French doctor, while on his voyage to India, was suspected by the Portuguese Government, tried by the Inquisition, and condemned to the galleys for a term of five years. His cause was again brought before the tribunal, and Dellon was set at liberty. He studied and observed the gloomy tribunal, and commented upon it in his writings with impartiality and moderation, which do him great credit.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF THE ANNUAL LETTER FROM THE FAR EAST.

- 1689 A.D. [573] Nuevas desde Oriente.

Manuscript in Spanish, beautifully written on 7 pp. of rice paper.

Folio, in buckram portfolio. Cancheu, 14th October, 1689. £52 10s.

This is an original manuscript sent by one of the famous Spanish missionaries, an Aragonese, from Cancheu in China.

It contains news from the missions in the Orient, from India, Manjar, Siam, China, Macao, Manila.

The last paragraphs are entitled "Modo, como van, y vienen las Cartas a este Oriente," in which the Jesuit Father describes the manner, ways, and times, how letters are sent from the Orient to Europe, and from Europe to the Orient. "The advice boat leaves in December, of this year, viz., 1689, from Macao it takes three months to go to Goa, so that it arrives in that city in March. The letters are kept during the whole of the year 1690 in Goa. Thereafter they leave Goa in January, 1691, and arrive in Lisbon in September of the same year, and thence in a month or two they are received in Aragon. So that letters which are written in China here in October, 1689, arrive in Aragon in October, 1691. From Aragon they answer in January or February, 1692; these letters arrive in March in Lisbon, in which month or at the beginning of April the ship for India leaves and arrives in Goa, in the same year, 1692. The letters wait there till April, 1693, when they leave for Macao, and in three months they arrive here. And so, the letters written in Spain, 1692, are received in Macao in August, 1693, and thence they are sent to the Fathers who are in China here. In this manner it is clearly seen that four years are necessary for an answer to be received to a letter, with the provision that in this calculation there may be some slight difference, more or less, depending on the state of the sea and winds.

"This route via Portugal is very roundabout, but as experience has shown, the safest.

"If only the Portuguese had missionaries in the Orient, letters would come much more quickly. Quite fresh news is received, however, by way of Amsterdam,

London, and Brest; but, as it is necessary to have correspondents to send the letters on, and there are difficulties in the way, this way is most difficult for us. I must not omit to mention the way via Manila, because although the letters are sometimes delayed, others come so quickly, that neither via Goa nor via Batavia can they arrive any quicker. As an instance, in this very year, 1689, we received the news of the election of our Very Rev. Father Gonzalez, via Portugal, in August, but we had already had the news via Manila, in November of last year." Etc., etc.

Actual manuscript letters sent by the early missionaries are of excessive rarity.

1689-1749 A.D. [574] Governo da India e Africa Oriental.

Collection of ninety-three Portuguese Manuscripts relating to the administration of the Portuguese Dominions in India and East Africa, with seven manuscript plans of forts, etc.

Thick folio, half calf. 1689-1749.

The greater number of these manuscripts are original and in the sender's autograph, while some are signed. The first MS. is an extremely interesting original letter, signed by the King of Portugal (Dom Joao V) consisting of twenty pages of instructions to the Marquis de Castello Novo, on his departure for India as Viceroy and Captain General of the Portuguese Dependency. He is instructed to observe the movements of his near neighbours, in order to be prepared against any attack; and is requested to try to re-establish the old friendly relations between India and Persia, which the late Marquez do Lourical, the former Viceroy, had attempted, "for you must know of its formidable power and about the acquisition of Thammass Kolican with his numerous armies, and the valuable assistance which they can give, with their troops, in favour of the State (India). You must know that recently they have conceived the idea of establishing a Navy, for which they have already bought some ships in Surat, and have ordered others to be built. And undoubtedly, if they should carry out their project it would be most useful to the State to make sure of the Persian squadrons, which in a few years will make themselves respected in these waters."

Instructions are also given with regard to commerce, "and besides all I have referred to with regard to the temporal interests of the State, I must also impress upon you the need for equal efforts on behalf of the Religious interests, the Christian communities and Missions of those vast dominions of which God has constituted me Protector." The letter is dated from Lisbon, 25th March, 1744. (This Viceroy arrived in India in September).

There are also Reports of arms, munitions, supplies, etc., sent to India between the years 1732-1745; documents relating to the Royal Treasury and revenue of India; distributions by the prize courts; the Marattas in India; the forts at Mozambique; conditions for the surrender of the ports of Senna, Sofala, and the south coast; and several original documents on the government of India. Amongst the interesting transcripts is that of a Royal Decree, ordering the Viceroy to establish an archive to serve as a Torre de Tombo in the city of Goa, where all the official documents should be kept, and that facilities should be given to Dom Diogo de Couto to gain access to these papers to assist him in the writing of his history of India. There is also a chronological record of the Portuguese Viceroys, from the year 1622 (when Dom Francisco da Gama, Conde da Vidigueira, officiated for the second time as Viceroy) to the year 1732; and a transcript of another early paper is that of the report on the commerce of Mozambique, from 1672 to 1739.

The documents are bound together in one volume, and form a valuable and interesting record of the Portuguese administration in the Far East during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

8vo, cloth, gilt. (Spain, 1690). £6 6s.

Salva, No. 1657. Not in Palau's Manual.

Salva's own copy of this romantic itinerary, which is regarded by some authorities as a romance of chivalry. It describes the voyages of the Infante Dom Pedro, son of the Portuguese King, Joam de Avis, and his quest for the seven wonders of the world. According to this record, he set out upon his travels from Barcelos, gathered a few henchmen, and went straight to Venice. From there, they proceeded to Greece, whence they left for Babylon, Jerusalem, Armenia, "where there is Noah's Ark," Arabia, Mount Sinai, Judaea, etc., etc. All his experiences are recorded concisely, including his meeting with the famous Prester John.

The account was written by Juan Gomez de Santisteban, one of the twelve companions who travelled with the Infante, although the work is often classified as one of the Infante's original compositions. Dom Pedro, though a Portuguese, contributed some good poetry to the Spanish literature of his day, which compared favourably with that of his Spanish contemporary and friend, Juan de Mena.

The above work was so little known that Eyriès, in his article "Merolla"

(Biogr. univers., XXVIII, 383) seems to thing that it was never printed in Italy.

At the end of this Italian version (by Padre Angelo Piccardo) of Padre Girolamo Merolla's account of his travels in the Congo, is the text of a letter in Portuguese, addressed to the traveller by Joao Manuel, Prince of the Congo, who welcomes the priest on his arrival in (?) Angoi and expresses a lively desire to come once again under the beneficent influence of his "spiritual father."

Padre Jerome or Girolamo Merolla was an Italian Capuchin priest and missionary who was born in Sorrento, circa 1650, and went out to Africa to preach the Gospel in 1682. His book, which comments upon the influence of the Portuguese in the Congo, describes in detail the life of the people and the natural resources there. Amongst the interesting plates is one, depicting a palm from which the natives obtained both oil and wine; and another, illustrating the use of tobacco, depicts a native man and woman in the act of smoking.

This book was translated into English and French and published in London in 1744 and Paris in 1746.

NOTICE

The significance of the Islamic book in its many aspects, calligraphy, miniatures, illumination, ornamentation, binding and so forth has long ago been established. It must be recognised nevertheless that publications dealing with this subject have been either general works on Islamic art, or else when they have dealt with the Islamic book the authors have been compelled to omit the early period before the thirteenth century on account of the small amount of material at their disposal. This difficulty was marked particularly in the case of Islamic illumination because the earliest known miniatures can rarely be dated earlier than the thirteenth century.

Examples of illumination of an earlier period have been brought to light only comparatively recently by discoveries of papyri in Egypt. It has been the special endeavour of Professor A. Grobmann in the University of Prague, as it were, to rediscover them here and to bring them together in a definitive synthesis. Part I of the present publication embraces therefore the early period from the twelfth to thirteenth century and deals with miniatures, pen-drawings, book-ornamentation, single leaf prints and bindings. Sir Thomas W. Arnold has dealt with the later period from the thirteenth to the eighteenth century. The first part, divided into three chapters, provides the basis necessary for the appreciation of the evolution of the art of book decoration and bookbinding. The second part, forming seven chapters, constitutes a history of book-illumination beginning with the remnants of Persian painting through the Mogul and Timurid period up to the work of Bibzad and his school and to Rizab Abbasi and the decay of Persian painting. The last three chapters deal with Islamic painting in India and Turkey as well as with the craft of book-making in recent times.

The Islamic Book therefore constitutes the first exhaustive work on the art of the Islamic book throughout twelve centuries and it gives the subject the historic background from which the craft emanated. The wealth of documentary sources, a great part of which is published here for the first time, adds enormously to the value of the text which is supported by a magnificent set of plates of which many are also published for the first time. The very greatest care has been bestowed upon the reproductions and ten plates are printed in colour to convey the splendour of the originals.

Every library and museum, every collector and every student of Islamic painting and illumination and of the art of the book in general will find this book a necessary asset. It will hardly be possible to find another book which deals so exhaustively with the subject and in a manner so readily intelligible. The plates make this work even more indispensable as they bring together valuable and scattered material of which an appreciable portion is published for the first time in this limited and numbered edition.

An interesting account of the foundation of the Convent of Saint Monica at

Goa, of the difficulties encountered at first, and the eventual triumph over these. The work also includes lives of several of the nuns of the convent. This book is rare, and sought by collectors and students of history on account of its contemporary records of the Portuguese rule in Goa.

Father Agostinho de Santa Maria, otherwise known as Manuel Gomes Freire, was born at Extremoz in 1642. He was Chronicler to his Order, the barefoot Augustinians, and Vicar General of the Congregation in Portugal. He was considered one of the Portuguese classical writers, and wrote many philosophical, poetical and historical works, besides numerous others which have remained unpublished.

1699 A.D. [599] DITTO. Another copy.

4to, original vellum. Lisboa, 1699.

£10 10s.

(Peking) China, 1700.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE No. II).

£75

Printed in the Chinese manner from characters cut on wooden blocks, and consisting of 32 leaves of native paper, the last three pages occupied with engravings on wood, namely:—

(1) A plan of the grave of S. Francis Xavier.

(2) Plan of the Island of Sancian.

(3) Islands in the Canton River.

Excessively rare and one of the most interesting books issued from the Missionary Press in China. It is an account of the magnificent Sepulchre erected that same year in the Island of Sancian, where the famous Apostle to India and Japan died in 1552.

1700 A.D. [601] [FERREIRA (Manuel)]. Noticias summarias das perseguições da Missam de Cochín-china, principiada, & continuada pelos Padres da Companhia de Jesu; offerecidas pelos mesmos Missionarios a El Rey Nosso Senhor. D. Pedro II.

Lisbon at the age of 17. He became professor of the humanities of Sant Antao, Lisbon, and went out to India in 1658, where he was present during the Christian persecution and suffered imprisonment. Regaining his liberty, he returned to Europe to obtain concessions for his mission, and set out for the East once more in 1694. He endured many trials and hardships in the Tonkin mission, where he effected a great number of conversions. This book appeared without the author's name. He also wrote an Annamite and Portuguese vocabulary, which, however, remained in manuscript. The present item is an unusual book, of great importance for the history of the early Portuguese Missions in China.

Christianity first came to Indo-China at the beginning of the sixteenth century, but progress was slow until Jesuit Missionaries arrived at the beginning of the seventeenth century. The Tonkin Mission was founded by them in 1627. Their severe persecution, which began in 1680 owing to the rapidly growing power of the Bishops and Priests, lasted over a hundred years, however. The Missionaries were repeatedly banished, but repeatedly returned, and a great many suffered martyrdom. This work describes the early years of this persecution.

1700 A.D. [602] DITTO. Another copy.

Cordier's Bibliography of European works printed in China, No. 392.

A complete copy of this exceedingly rare work (a little wormed).

The work relates to the subject of the Chinese rites and their acceptance by the Jesuits. At the end the work is signed by various Jesuits. The Mandarins and Princes of China were obliged on certain days to officially honour Heaven, Confucius, and Ancestors. The Jesuit Missionaries allowed their converts to pay these honours, finding that the practice need not in any way be detrimental to their Christianity; the other Missionaries, however, mostly Dominicans and Franciscans, utterly forbade the practice. A hundred and twenty years of dispute followed, and Rome finally decided against the custom because of its tendency to idolatry. From that time Christianity declined and practically ceased to exist among the higher classes.

At the time of the publication of this work the Jesuits were in favour with the Great Emperor, Kam-Hi, or K'ang-hi, particularly on account of their scientific attainments, and many of the great Princes and Mandarins at his court professed Christianity.

- 1701 A.D. [608] BOWREY (Thos.). A Dictionary, English and Malayo, Malayo and English. To which is added some short Grammar Rules and Directions for the better observation of the Propriety and Elegancy of this Language. FIRST EDITION. 8vo, contemporary calf, gilt back.

London, Dan. Brown, 1704.

£4 4s.

George Psalmanaazaar, the famous literary imposter, was a native of the South of France, where he received a good education. Owing to his poverty he took to the road as a beggar, and to bring himself into more prominence passed himself off as a Japanese and later as an inhabitant of Formosa. He invented an elaborate alphabet and grammar (illustrated in this work) and a worship of his own. Later he was baptised as a Protestant and came to England, where he was able to deceive nearly everyone. This work was written to improve his position, and gives an account of Formosa drawn up from his imagination, and an account of his travels and reception in England.

- 1704 A.D. [615] KNOLLS & RYCAUT (Paul). The Turkish History, comprehending the origin of that nation and the growth of the Othoman Empire, with the lives and conquests of their several Kings and Emperors. £4 4s.

Maillard de Tournon was the Papal Legate to India and China. He issued a decree in Pondicherry forbidding the missionaries to allow the further practice of the Malabar rites; he also issued another decree at Nanking in 1707 obliging the missionaries under pain of excommunication to abolish the Chinese rites practiced by the Christian communities there. These rites consisted chiefly in offering small sacrifices to Confucius and their ancestors, and in the use of the Chinese terms "heaven" and "supreme emperor" for God. On his attempt to abolish these essentially Chinese customs, Emperor Kang hi ordered Tournon to be imprisoned at Macao, and sent Jesuits to Rome to protest against the decree. Tournon died in prison shortly afterwards, in 1710. Upon the announcement of his death, in Rome, Clement XI praised his courage and loyalty, and approved his Decrees. This work contains an account of all these matters. The whole incident was of considerable importance, and was the basis of much ill-feeling towards the Jesuits.

£2 2s.

This contains an account of the recent progress of the Portuguese Arms in India, and of the treaty of friendship and alliance between the Viceroy Vasco Fernandez Cesar de Menezes and the King of Kanara. Soon after Vasco Fernandes succeeded to his government he fell out with the King of Kanara, whereupon he proceeded with a small squadron to Barcelor, and having dismantled the fortress there, he burnt all the villages along the river banks, and killed all who attempted to offer any opposition. Calianapor, also on the Malabar Coast, suffered a similar fate, after which Vasco Fernandes bombarded Mangalor, Comuta, Gocorna, and Mirzeo, spreading terror, fire and death in every direction.

The treaty, for the most part, concerns Mangalor. Arab boats are forbidden to enter the port, and considerable benefits are accorded the Christian population. Towards the end particulars are given concerning other affairs in India, the succession of the new Mogul Emperor, and the sending of Father Joseph de Sylva to him with the Viceroy's congratulations, etc.

The "relation" appears to be based on the reports sent home to the King of Portugal, by the Viceroy.

In all 78 pp., small 4to, bound by Rousselle in full levant morocco, gilt, g. e. Lisbon, Pascoal da Sylva, 1715-1716.

£15 15s.

These four pamphlets were also issued separately. They are exceedingly scarce, and are of great value for their particulars of the Portuguese activities in India, under the celebrated Viceroy Vasco Fernandes. Details are given of the disputes between the Portuguese and the King of Kanara, the Moors, etc., and of contemporary events under the Great Mogul, and other Indian princes.

£52 10s.

Cordier's Bibliography of early European books printed in China, No. 393.

Copies of this rare work are known with a leaf at the beginning printed in Manchu, and also with a printed title. This particular copy has a preliminary blank leaf, with printed border similar to the rest of the work, and has the title in contemporary manuscript, but on European paper. It was issued so as the original sewing is still intact, and was probably sent to Europe where the Manchu title would be unreadable.

This work relates to the subject of the Chinese rites in honour of Heaven, Confucius and Ancestors, and to attacks which had been made on the Jesuits and to the harm likely to be caused thereby to their Missions.

- 1717 A.D. [654] CORDEYRO (Padre Antonio). Historia Insulana das Ilhas a Portugal sugeytas no Oceano Occidental.

Folio, bound by Pratt in full crimson morocco, gilt, g. e.

Lisbon, Antonio Pedrozo Galram, 1717.

£7 10s.

The above is an interesting account of the Cape Verde Isles, the Canary Isles, and the Island of Madeira, and contains a more detailed description of the Azores, relating how they were conquered, their history, products, etc., etc., and a genealogical outline of the families residing in the Azores.

Antonio Cordeyro, a Jesuit, was a native of the Azores, born at Angra, the capital of the Isle of Terceira, in 1641. He studied at Coimbra, where he wrote a few treatises on Philosophy and Rhetorics. He died at the College of Saint Antao in Lisbon, Feb. 2, 1722.

PROÆMIUM

Viri fratres Coopetarij Evangelici in Vineâ Sinensi. Mirabile ac fide humanâ majus vobis visum est, quod uno ferme ab hinc anno audivistis, innocentiam Patrum Soc. 8 pp., small 4to, half morocco.

Lisbon, Pascoal da Sylva, 1717.

£1 1s.

An amusing account of the alarming visions beheld by the Sultan Achmet III in his dreams, and the unfavourable interpretation rendered by Turkish astrologers. These magicians informed their sovereign that the lions of which he had dreamt signified the union of Christian enemies against him; adding to his terror by the announcement that the lion's claws represented the evil designs of the German Emperor upon the Ottoman Empire! The text is given of the many hasty prayers that followed this announcement at Constantinople.

An account of the unfortunate voyage of the "Golden Buss," Capt. Theunis Baanman, which set sail from Enckhuysen for the East-Indies on 4 May, 1693. Everything went prosperously until the Equator was reached, when the vessel became becalmed, and three-quarters of the crew were laid up with sunstroke and dysentery. The vessel managed to reach St. Helena Bay, where the six remaining healthy members of the crew set out overland for a Dutch Settlement, one managing to reach Saldanha Bay. A vessel was despatched from the Cape. On arrival at St. Helena Bay she found the "Golden Buss" and took on board her cargo of gold, but her crew were all dead. The vessel itself sank shortly afterwards. One of the remaining land party managed, with native help, to regain the Bay, and was taken on board the rescue ship, but the other four never returned. The relief vessel was wrecked on her return in Saldanha Bay, but the survivor of the "Golden Buss" was rescued by the natives and reached the Cape safely and there joined his companion. This account is based on the narrative of the two survivors.

Retana mentions this work in his notes on another work of Correa y Villarreal's (No. 230), and remarks concerning it:—

"Dr. José Correa Villa Real, a Judge of the Audiencia at Manila, was one of the most illustrious legal personalities in that country during the earlier part of the eighteenth century. He judged many important cases. . . . He is the author of an extremely rare publication, the only copy known to us being the one in Don Antonio Graiño's possession." This is the publication offered herewith. The text refers to a famous lawsuit which created considerable stir in Manila at the time: "General Quintero died in 1703; his daughter was married to another General, Don José de Oscorta, who, in 1706, claimed from Padre Marron no less a sum than 130,000 pesos which, it was said, General Quintero had diverted from the channel for which he had originally bequeathed it, on the advice of Padre Marron. This led to a big lawsuit, in which the Archbishop Camacho intervened, and of which the writer gives detailed information in his curious book. Padre Marron, on his part, has left a manuscript on Quintero's famous will."

One of the most important works on the East, and especially so for its account of the Navigations of the Dutch in the East Indies. François Valentyn, the celebrated traveller, was born at Dordrecht about 1660, and went out to Batavia in 1685 as an ecclesiastic in the Dutch East-India Company's employ. His celebrated work, sometimes called the Encyclopædia of the Dutch Indies, was the result of all his researches and travels, and in it he treats of Dutch commerce in various parts of the East, and also of the Histories and Natural Histories of the various lands and districts described by him. Perhaps of all the places described, Amboyna is treated of with the fullest details. The work also contains all the then available details concerning the Dutch Australasian discoveries.

The author sets out to investigate the best way of converting Indians and suggests that they should be forced by the powers of the Kings of Portugal to listen to the propagation of Christian doctrines. He proposes that the Indian religion should be put down, and all native ceremonies, public or secret, forbidden, etc. He proposes a reformation of the administration of India, both civil and ecclesiastical, more especially as regards the administration of justice, taxes, etc.

FIRST EDITION. 8vo, original calf.

London, W. Meadows, 1729.

£5 15s.

A most interesting and well written account of the author's shipwreck and subsequent adventures in Madagascar, in the year 1701. Admiral Benbow's son was fourth Mate of the "Degrave." On arriving at Bengal the Captain and first mate died, so Benbow was second mate on the homeward journey. The "Degrave" sprung a leak but reached Mauritius safely. The captain, without making any repairs, decided to sail to the Cape, but a storm coming on he was obliged to run the vessel ashore off the south of Madagascar. Benbow and three others managed to escape capture by the natives and were rescued by a Dutch ship. The rest of the crew, with the exception of a boy, Robert Drury, thirteen years of age, were killed by the inhabitants.

Benbow had written some account of Madagascar, the manuscript of which was accidentally burnt in 1714. It had, however, been seen by several, and the hazy recollections of it, together with Drury's story, who had just returned to England, were worked up, not improbably by Daniel Defoe, and published under Drury's name. Drury, after his return, spent the remainder of his life as a porter in a London warehouse.

About 1634, Shahji Bhonsla, a Rajput soldier of fortune, joined with two of the Mohammedan States against the Mughals, and in 1646, his younger son Sivaji or Sevagy obtained possession of the hill fortress of Torna, twenty miles south-west of Poona. Being left unmolested, he slowly strengthened his position, and in time formed a National party out of the Hindu tribes of south-western India, which ultimately became the Mahratta confederacy. His ambition was to drive the Portuguese out of India, and in course of time they were deprived of some of the few possessions left them by the Dutch. Sevagy died in 1680. A scarce and important work marking the definite decline of the Portuguese Indian Empire, and the rise of the Mahratta Confederacy.

This interesting work contains a series of twelve accounts of famous sixteenth century shipwrecks, being reprints of the old original editions, with separate title to each account, but with continuous pagination. These accounts comprise:—

Shipwreck of the Great Galleon, "St. João," off the coast of Natal in 1552. This shipwreck is one of the most celebrated in Portuguese History, and was commemorated by Camoens in one of his poems. It gives an account of the deaths of Manoel de Sousa Sepulveda, his wife, child, and companion, among the Kaffirs in South Africa.

Shipwreck of the "S. Bento" at the Cape of Good Hope in 1554.

Shipwreck of the "Conceição" in 1555 on the "Pero dos Banhos" sandbanks off the Indian Coast.

Account of the events which occurred to the vessels "Aguia" and "Garça" in 1559. The second part of this account contains a long description of the City of Colombo, by Father Manoel Barradas.

Shipwreck of the "Santa Maria da Barca" in 1559 on its return from India.

Shipwreck of the "S. Paulo" off the Island of Sumatra in 1561.

Shipwreck of Jorge de Albuquerque Coelho on his journey from Brazil to Portugal in 1565. Written by Bento Teixeira Pinto, who was in the same wreck.

Shipwreck of the "Santiago" in 1585, and the journey of the survivors. Written by Manoel Godinho Cardozo.

Shipwreck of the "S. Thomè" off South Africa in 1589, and of the great sufferings of Don Paulo de Lima in Caffraria until his death. Written by Diogo de Couto.

32 pp., small 4to, boards. Lisbon, 1736. £5 5s.

This is a very scarce account of the famous sieges of Goa and Chaul in 1570. In 1570 several Indian Princes, perceiving the vast increase of Portuguese Power in the East, decided to give it one final blow. An immense army of over 250,000 fighting men was gathered together, and siege was laid to Goa and Chaul. There were only a few hundred Portuguese in either place, yet they resisted a ten-months' siege and bombardment, and the enemy finally had to withdraw, after losing many thousands of men.

The third volume, "Missions of China and Japan," especially is of extreme rarity; very few copies of the work have ever reached Europe. The work possesses an American as well as an Asiatic interest, because of the constant shifting of the missionaries from one to another seat of labour. The names of Mexico, Guatemala, Paraguay, etc., are thickly studded through the pages. Volumes I and II contain the History of the Franciscan Order in the Philippines from their foundation till 1741. It is one of the most important chronicles relating to the Philippines, China, and Japan.

There are also many references to Mexico and other parts of Spanish America scattered throughout the work.

With 8 engraved maps and 11 plates.

2 vols., 8vo, contemporary calf. London, 1739.

£5 15s.

"Alexander Hamilton, merchant and author, describes himself as 'having a rambling mind and a fortune too narrow to allow him to travel like a gentleman.' He went to the East Indies in 1688, and remained there till 1723. During this time he seems to have followed a life of commercial adventure, sometimes as captain of a ship, sometimes as supercargo, sometimes in a ship of his own, or in one privately owned, sometimes in a ship of one or other of the rival companies, and so to have visited almost every port, from Jeddah in the Red Sea to Amoy in China. His adventures and experiences are told in a most interesting manner in his 'New Account of the East Indies,' a work which, in the charm of its naive simplicity, perfect honesty, with some similarity of subject in its account of the manners and history of people little known, offers a closer parallel to the history of Herodotus than perhaps any other in modern literature."—Professor J. K. Laughton in Dict. Nat. Biography."

- 1740 A.D. [714] DEAN (John). A True and Genuine Narrative of the whole Affair relating to the Ship Sussex, as sent to the Directors of the Honourable East India Company; from the time she was deserted by the Officers, and greatest part of the crew, till she was unfortunately wreck'd on the Bassas de India. Also a particular account of the many Hardships and Distresses of the Sixteen Brave Sailors who staid on Board. With a list of their names. By John Dean, the only surviving Person of them all.

8vo, boards. London, C. Corbett, 1740. £2 15s.

The author was a sailor on board the "Sussex" which sprung a leak during a storm whilst to the East of the Cape of Good Hope. The Officers and majority of the crew, believing that the vessel would sink, transferred to the "Winchester" East Indiaman which was close by; sixteen sailors, however, chose to stand by the vessel. They reached St. Augustine's Bay, Madagascar, in safety, whence they intended to sail for Mozambique, but the vessel ran on the Bassas de India rocks, off the South of Madagascar, and became a wreck. Nine of the crew set off for the shore in the pinnace, three were drowned by the boat capsizing. After various adventures Dean was rescued by an English vessel and reached Bombay.

Porto, na Officina de Antonio Pedroso Coimbra, 1741. £4 10s.

This edition is not mentioned by Innocencio. According to the latter, the name Diogo da Costa is an assumed name, the author's real name is thought to have been André da Luz.

In 1736 the Portuguese were constructing the fortress of Thana, and had been at work there for four years. The long delay caused great discontent in the town, and in addition the workmen were unpaid and unfed, so they invited the Mahrattas to take possession of the Island of Salsette (near Bombay). Salsette and other places were captured from the Portuguese, and the enemy marched on Bassein, which city, after two sieges and terrible assaults, was obliged to capitulate, the Portuguese retiring into Bombay.

This tract is intended to counteract the effect produced by confused and contradictory accounts which had appeared, concerning the three years' warfare in the neighbourhood of "Baçaim" [Bassein], between the Indian enemy Mahrattas and the Portuguese troops, who acquitted themselves with such valour "as to deserve eternal fame"; one of the principal Portuguese heroes being General Martinho da Silveira.

Accounts are also given of the native assault upon the fortresses of Damao, Chaul and Dio; in the province of Salsette, and at Goa; and one chapter describes the naval battle off Mangalore between the Portuguese ship "Vitoria," under the command of Antonio de Brito Freire, and ten smaller vessels under the command of Savaji Angaria, on the 5th March, 1739. The Portuguese vessel gave a very good account of itself against heavy odds, being finally put out of action after inflicting considerable losses on the enemy.

Murcia, Joseph Lopez Mesnier, 1742.

£8 10s.

A scarce and interesting account of Franciscan Missionary endeavours in Tibet. In 1732 a party of Franciscans, sent out by Pope Clement XI, were granted a passport by the King of Tibet at Lhasa on 7th August, 1732, and founded a Mission in that country. Their leader was Father Francisco Oracio de la Peña, and this report was published with the object of attracting further missionaries there. In the report details are given of events in Tibet, China, and Tartary, together with the text of the original passport, and evidence of their friendly relations with the Tibetans. This mission finally came to an end in 1760 owing to the Missionaries having been expelled because of their interference with the interior affairs of the Tibetans. Tibet then remained a closed country to Europeans until recent times.

Small 4to, 31 pp., new boards. Lisbon, 1743. £5 15s.

According to a contemporary manuscript note on the title, the author's name was really Friar Francisco da Cunha Graciano. A few leaves have been slightly cut into at the top.

The title of this scarce and curious work reads in translation: "Account of the marvellous voyage of the ship 'St. Pedro and St. Joam' belonging to the Macao Company owing to the miraculous image of Our Lady of Penha de França, the Holy Protectress of the Merchantmen of this Kingdom and of all Sailors, with a description and drawing of the great cobra which was discovered in the said ship and grew up in the water-butt and lived quietly with the ship's crew and was killed in that same ship when it anchored at Lisbon, where it was seen and admired as a huge reptile." Together with an account of the creation in the world of all kinds of cobras and serpents. (The snakes treated of are mostly from Brazil and India).

With the large folding copper-plate pictorial map of Goa.

6 vols. in 1. Small 4to, old half vellum. Lisbon, 1746-1753. £35

An exceedingly scarce work, complete, in the original six parts. The contents of the various parts are:—

Vol. I. Account of the Voyage of the Marquis de Castelo Novo as Viceroy to India, and of the first events of his Government; together with some particulars concerning the voyage of Father Laurenzo de Santa Maria, the Archbishop of Goa; his arrival and entrance into Goa.

Vol. II. Account of the events in Portuguese India under the Viceroy, the Marquis de Castelo Novo, the destruction of Rama Chandra Saunto, and Zeiramo Sanctu Dessayes, two powerful Indian Princes near Goa.

Vol. III. The storming of the Fortress of Terecol, the defeat of the Fleet of the Bounsulos, and surrender of the City of Rary. With a map of Goa.

Vol. IV. Account of the Political, Military and Civil Progress during 1747.

Vol. V. Surrender of the garrisons of Neuty, Carly, and Vangrollen, and other events of the year 1748.

Vol. VI. Final account of the happenings in India under the Marquis of Castelo Novo, in which is told the methods adopted for the defence of that Kingdom; and of various events in regard to the Bounsulos; the Dessayes of Chicory, and Quintur; and of the Mahrattas; and of the glorious fight between two Portuguese ships and the Mahratta Fleet; and of the entrance of the Marquis de Tavora into the Government of India.

On the 22nd Sept., 1744, Dom Pedro Miguel de Almeida e Portugal, Marquis of Castelo-Novo, and afterwards of Alorna, arrived at Goa from Lisbon, and assumed possession of the government, as Viceroy, two days later. Under his administration the advance of the Mahratta forces was, to some extent, checked. He carried on a war against them, and succeeded in recovering the fortresses of Bicholim and Sanquelim, with their adjacent territories, and on the 26th Oct., 1746, the Dessayes of these provinces swore faithful allegiance to the King of Portugal, in return for considerable help and privileges. On 5th May, 1746, the Viceroy captured Alorna, for which act he received the title of Marquis of Alorna, and he also subsequently took the fortresses of Tiracol and Neutim, and the stronghold of Rarim. When he handed over the government to his successor the Portuguese power round Goa was far more strong and consolidated than it had been at his arrival, and his government is deservedly looked upon as a brilliant episode of the declining years of Portuguese power in India.

- 1748 A.D. [739] SANZ (Pedro Martyr). Allocutio SSmi. Dñi. Nostri Benedicti PP. XIV. habita in Consistorio Secreto die 16 Septemb, 1748. De pretiosa morte Petri Martyris ex Ordine Prædicatorum, Episcopi Mauricastrensis, Vicarii Apostolici Provinciæ Fo-Kiensis in Regno Sinensi.

4 pp., folio, half morocco, t. e. g. N.P. and N.D. (circa 1748). £2 2s.

The discourse addressed to the "Reverend Brothers" at the secret session on 16th September, 1748, refers to the martyrdom of the Bishop of Mauricastra the previous year. Pedro Martyr Sanz, Vicar Apostolic, was one of the Dominican missionaries in Fu-kien, China, who were victimized during the anti-Catholic outbreak in the reign of the Emperor K'ien Lung. He, with four other Dominicans, was arrested, and after being tortured, was sentenced to death by the Viceroy of the Province in November, 1746. Sanz was martyred on 26th May, 1747; and was beatified by Leo XIII on 14th May, 1893.

Escudero (Hispalense), No. 2300, where it is incorrectly cited. Palau's Manual, VI, p. 504.

This edition is the first European re-print of the work, which was originally printed (on rice paper) in Manila in 1748, and reprinted in that city, without date.

The book contains a contemporary relation of the persecution of the Dominicans in the province of Fokien, from 1746 to 1748, and a full account of the martyrdom of Friar Pedro Martyr Sanz, Bishop of Mauricastro, Vicar of Fokien, and administrator of the ecclesiastical provinces of Chekiang and Kiang-tse.

The account was written by his successor, Fr. Francisco Serrano, as Bishop and Vicar of Fokien, whilst in prison, under sentence of death. At the end of the book is the text of a discourse "pronounced in the public consistory by Pope Benedict XIV, in 1748, on the martyrdom of Frai Pedro Martyr Sanz.

Fray Francisco Serrano was a Spanish Dominican who went out as missionary to the Dominican province of the Holy Rosary in the Philippines in 1725, and thence proceeded to China. He was one of the five colleagues of his Order who were eventually beheaded at Fokien; and was martyred on 28th October, 1748. Some works in Tagalo, the native Philippine language, are attributed to him.

2 parts in 1 vol., 8vo, half calf. London, W. Webb, 1750-1. £3 3s.

A very curious narrative. The early pages give some account of practical joking on board. The Surgeon and Captain of the "Durrington" quarrelled over a lady passenger, the former being put under guard with a very scanty food allowance. The author discusses at length the legality of any but Naval Officers instituting a Courts Martial. He was illegally tried at Bombay, disgraced and banished to Goa. On his return to England, via Brazil, another trial was held, an account of which was published later.

an operation which preceded the Battle of Plassey and led to the foundation of the British Empire in India, the "Kent" was badly damaged, and Admiral Watson dying, the vessel was condemned and the crew either transferred to other vessels or discharged. Pigot, with three of the officers, Messrs. Doidge, Ives and Pye, determined to return home overland from the Gulf of Persia, setting sail in the "Revenge" East Indiaman from Calcutta. Colombo was visited, and Mr. Ives went ashore to bring off a sick Englishman, a Mr. Knox, Supercargo of the "Fatty Salam." The author gives a five-page account of Colombo as supplied him by Mr. Ives. He remarks on the great strength of the place, stating "All the Europeans in India collected into one Army would make very little or no impression on it." He also writes of the fine type of Dutch troops in garrison there.

The diary of Surgeon Ives was published in 1773, and in the course of it he makes various references to his companion, Mr. Pigot.

- 1770 A.D. [806] Bombay. Fine water-colour drawing of a view of Bombay from Malabar Hill with the Island of Karanja and part of the Indian mainland in the distance. Undated and unsigned.

Size 28 by 20 inches. Circa 1770.

(SEE ILLUSTRATION, PLATE No. V.). £21

In the Victoria and Albert Museum, Bombay, there is what is apparently a very similar view, which is ascribed to James Forbes, writer in the East India Company, who was stationed at Bombay during the years 1765-84. The drawing gives the sweep of Back Bay with the city in the distance. The city ramparts extend unbroken along the west and north sides, shewing that the drawing was executed after their completion about the year 1750.

Batavia, 1770-1811.

£285

The last Proclamation is dated 26th August, 1811. A few days after this Java capitulated to British forces, 18th Sept., 1811, and in all probability these volumes were then taken possession of by the British troops and were sent to England. Holland at that time was united to France and had as her King Louis Napoleon, consequently the later proclamations are in the name of Louis Napoleon. Some are in manuscript, and many bear the autograph signature of the Governor or of other high officials.

£15 15s.

The best account of the early discoveries of the Portuguese. In this edition all that appeared of the original work has been reprinted and the missing portions supplied from other sources.

First collective edition of all the Decades of Barros and Couto. The tenth and eleventh decades were first published in the above edition. The eleventh decade, by Diogo do Couto, the original manuscript of which has disappeared and has not been recovered, consists of a resumé of "Feitos que os Portuguezes fizeram no descobrimento dos mares, e conquistas das terras do Oriente, em quanto governaram a India Manoel de Souza Coutinho, e Mathias de Albuquerque.

The work is divided up as follows:—

Vols. 1-8. João de Barros' four Decades.

Vol. 9. Life of J. de Barros by Manoel Severin de Faria, and general index to the four Decades of his "Asia."

Vols. 10-23. Life of Diogo de Couto and his eleven "Decades."

Vol. 24. General Index to Couto's Decades.

The "Asia" contains the fullest historical account of the voyages and conquests of the Portuguese in the East, including Africa, Brazil, etc. Barros, who is one of the most correct and classical of Portuguese writers, is universally esteemed as a historian. He was born about 1496 and died at the age of 74. He served three Portuguese Kings—Manuel, John III, and Sebastian. Couto was the chronicler and chief Keeper of the Archives of Torre do Tombo at Goa, India, where he died in 1616. The histories of Cabral (the discoverer of Brazil), Vasco de Gama, the Albuquerques, Tristan da Cunha, are all fully treated of by the most competent Portuguese historian, who had all the Archives of the Indies at his disposal.

1778-80 A.D. [821] HUDDART (Capt. Joseph). Original Manuscript Muster Book of the East Indiaman "Royal Admiral," 903 tons, Captain Joseph Huddart, for her first voyage to Bombay and back to England, in 1778-1780.

Folio, 12 pp., boards. 1778-80. £4 4s.

The "Royal Admiral" was owned by Sir Richard Hotham, cousin by marriage to Capt. Huddart. The captain was a very celebrated hydrographer, and through the introduction of his cousin joined the East India Company, making four Voyages to India in the "Royal Admiral." He retired in 1788, and spent three years surveying the Hebrides. In 1791 he was elected an elder brother of Trinity House and also a F.R.S. Shortly afterwards he entered into business for the manufacture of cordage on an improved principle invented by himself, and made a considerable fortune. He died in 1816. Several memoirs of his life were published, one of which was illustrated by Cruikshank. Hoppner painted his portrait.

This muster book is very interesting, giving details as to the pay of the crew, from £10 monthly for the Captain, to 15/- monthly for various officer's servants. The ordinary A.B.'s received from £1/10/0 to £2/5/0 a month. Details are given as to what happened to the men. A considerable number were impressed by warships, others deserted, a few died, and the remainder were discharged on the ship's return.

1781-2 A.D. [825] MUNRO (Major-General Sir Hector). Three of his Manuscript Letter Books, from Oct. 7, 1781, to Jan. 13, 1782, covering the period in which he was in command of the Operations against the Dutch Settlements in Tanjore, which finally resulted in his capture of Negapatam after a month's siege on Nov. 12, 1781.

3 vols., thick folio, boards.

Comprising copies of the letters sent by General Munro to the various commanding officers of the neighbouring garrisons and outposts of the Southern Army, and copies of their letters sent to him. The greater number are written to, or received from, Col. Brathwaite, who was left in charge of Tanjore while Munro was besieging Negapatam. Col. Braithwaite, a few weeks after the close of these letters, was entirely defeated by Tippoo Sahib, on the banks of the Colerun, in Feb., 1728.

Comprising in all 250 letters concerning this campaign, containing many very interesting accounts of the capture of the various forts and towns, and of the trouble over obtaining pay and rations for the troops, and of the various negotiations with the Rajah of Tanjore. The majority of the letters are addressed to Munro, or sent by him while in camp before Negapatam, or in the town after its capture, to various people.

1794 A.D. [859] WATT (James). Manuscript Journal of Mr. James Watt, in his Expedition to and from Teembo in the Year 1794, copied from the Author's own Manuscript deposited in the Secretary's Office, Fort Thornton.

250 pp., folio, old half calf. 1794.

£31 10s.

An extremely interesting Journal of an expedition sent by the then newly-formed Sierra Leone Company under James Watt from Freetown, Sierra Leone, along the coast northwards to the River Nunez, up that river, and then overland to the inland cities of Labe and Timbo, now situated in French Guinea. The Journal is written in an extremely interesting manner, with minute details and descriptions of all the country passed, and long accounts of the settlements visited, especially of the cities of Labe and Timbo. The writer was the first white man seen in many of the districts, and his account is probably the earliest description of parts of the country traversed. He also describes and names the various headmen he met.

The expedition was undertaken for a twofold purpose, first of founding trading centres at Labe and Timbo for the Sierra Leone Company, and, secondly, as a means of furthering the suppression of the slave trade, which, of course, was rampant all along that coast, and which was supplied with slaves who had been made prisoners in the inter-tribal warfare up country.

The original Diary referred to in the title was probably long since destroyed, as the English Settlements were sacked by the French only a few weeks later. This copy was doubtless made for sending to the authorities in England.

The Journal covers the period Jan. 20 to May 3, 1794, and is dated from Freetown, 14th June, 1794.

- 1794 A.D. [860] COLPOYS (Admiral Sir John). Copy of the Observations taken by Captain Colpoys of the "Dolphin" at the Mauritius. Manuscript forwarded to Henry Dundas, first Lord Melville, then Secretary for War, by Mr. George Paterson, together with his covering letter.

20 pp. folio, and 3 pp. 4to. Castle Huntley, 12 Jan., 1794. £10 10s.

A very interesting manuscript report concerning the military strength of the French in Mauritius. The author gives some amusing details of how the French Governor did his best to exaggerate the strength of the Island, and even went so far as to wear the uniform of the dragoons and state that he had been reviewing those troops, whereas the author, Mr. Colpoys, knew that there weren't any dragoons on the Island, and were not any more than about 30 horses to be found there! The manuscript shews that the British Government were even then thinking of a possible conquest of the Island, which, however, did not materialize until 1810.

Mr. Paterson writes: "In the note I had the honour of receiving from you, you mention a plan of the Mauritius, by which I conceive my letter to you had been misunderstood. I have no plan, but what I thought of at the time was a report of a Capt. Russell. . . . However, on my arrival here I found in my journal a much more perfect account of these Islands by Capt. Colpoys, then commanding the "Dolphin," and sent there by Sir Robt. Harland in 1772, which is herewith sent. If anything serious be intended against the Mauritius, I know no man fitter to be sent than Capt. Colpoys. . . . He now commands the "Hannibal," is a most excellent officer, and a sensible, intelligent man." Etc.

Capt. Colpoys afterwards became Admiral Sir John Colpoys, and had a distinguished naval career.

THE FIRST BRITISH OCCUPATION OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

1797 A.D. [866] MACARTNEY (Lord). Lord Macartney's Official Diary or Journal, whilst Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, from May 4, 1797, the date of his Arrival at the Cape of Good Hope as Governor, to the time of his Departure, Nov. 20, 1798.

The Original Manuscript, 364 pages, neatly and clearly written by the Secretary, but with alterations and additions in Lord Macartney's autograph.

Folio, original covers. £125

This volume is of the greatest interest and importance for the history of the Cape Colony, and presents an exceedingly interesting picture of the state of things there at the time of the first British occupation. It opens with an account of the arrival of Lord Macartney on May 4th, 1797, and closes with his departure on Nov. 20th, 1798.

Accounts are given of the various disputes between the British authorities and the Burgher Senate. Lists of names appear of numerous Boers who had refused to take the Oath of Allegiance to His Britannic Majesty and the means adopted to compel them to do so are given.

Proclamations on a wide range of subjects are mentioned, viz.:—Against the traffic in Arms and Ammunition, Smuggling, Expeditions against "The Wild Bosjesmen," Caffers, Hottentots, etc., against harbouring deserters from His Majesty's forces, Letters and Reports to and from the Landdrosts of the various districts, Making grounds for Encampments and Building of Huts for the Military.

Several of the entries between Oct. 7th and Nov. 9th, 1797, are taken up with accounts of mutinies among the sailors at Cape Town and the means adopted to deal with the mutineers and to prevent their communicating with and affecting the soldiers of the garrison.

Among the Burghers are included many names of historic interest, that of

De Wet occurs several times, also Van Reenan, Du Toit, Brand, Villiers, Kruger, etc.

Mention is also made of the arrival of ships of American, Danish, Prussian, and other nationalities, with the restrictions imposed on them with regard to the landing or embarkation of cargoes.

The volume closes with an interesting declaration by Lord Macartney, in which he says: "I have never accepted nor received, nor expect to receive, any gift, present, benefit, or emolument, except some small articles of fruit, venison, or such trifles as it was out of my power to refuse or elude, all of which I am sure could not exceed the value of from one to two hundred Rix Dollars."

THE FIRST BRITISH OCCUPATION OF THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

1797 A.D. [867] MACARTNEY (Lord). Lord Macartney's Official Letter Book, whilst Governor of the Cape, comprising his entire Correspondence with Officials, Generals, Admirals, Presidents, and Members of the Senate, Judges, and numerous other people connected with the Government at the Cape, from May 8, 1797, to Nov. 20, 1798.

Neatly and clearly written by his Secretary.

Rough calf, 409 pp., large folio.

£105

These letters, nearly 750 in number, give a wonderfully interesting picture of the political and social state of the Cape Colony at the time of the first British occupation. They are addressed to members of all classes of the community:—

The Burgher Senate, Landdrosts of the various districts, British Officials, Naval and Military Commanders, Captains of various foreign ships at Cape Town, Dutch Farmers, etc.

Those addressed to the Burgher Senate and to the Landdrosts throw an interesting light on the strained relations existing between the Dutch population and the British authorities.

In one (dated 3 June, 1798), Lord Macartney says:—

"It is not his intention in future to do the Burgher Senate the honor of consulting them with regard to the use of the Stad House. It is His Order that the Keys be delivered to Brigadier General Vandeleur. He shall not easily forget the difficulties made by the Burgher Senate to facilitate the loyal purpose of celebrating His Majesty's Birthday."

In others he points out the advantages to be derived from the British connection. He also gives instructions for surveys to be made, and makes various suggestions for improvements in Cape Town. He complains of the condition of the streets and avenues, "which are so much broken up and out of repair that in many places they are become almost impassable."

Among the numerous letters to the Landdrosts occurs a long and particularly interesting one to the Landdrost of Graaf Reinets, which is accompanied by a long list of "Instructions" (occupying several pages), and a further list of "Private Instructions," the 7th Article of which orders "For particular reasons and until further orders, the said Landdrost is authorized by these presents to keep watchful eye upon the Correspondence between Graaf Reinets and the Cape, or other districts, and to intercept to open and to examine every suspected letter."

Numerous letters refer to the Oath of Allegiance which many of the farmers refused to take. Persons refusing are to be arrested and conveyed to the Castle of Cape Town. Severe restrictions are laid on the Dutch with regard to moving from one district to another, without first obtaining permission. Dissertations from the Army and Navy appear to have been frequent, and the inhabitants are warned against harbouring deserters, severe penalties being threatened in the event of their doing so.

A Letter to the President and Members of the Court of Justice abolishes Torture and the Punishment of Death by Breaking on the wheel "and other barbarous modes of execution."

Many of the letters bear on Financial Matters, the Paper Currency, Taxation, Levying of Tolls, Contraband, Smuggling, the Slavery Question, the Natives, etc., etc.

In a long and interesting letter to John Barrow, the celebrated African traveller, he remarks: "In addition to the Political enquiries you are to make, you will direct a particular attention to the following objects: 'What Mines of Gold, Silver, Copper, Tin, Iron, Lead and Coal have been discovered, or what appearances of such Mines present themselves to your notice. What Commerce or Intercourse might be carried on with the Hottentots or other savage Nations. . . . Whether the Caffer Country abounds as it is said with Ivory, Gold Dust, and other valuable articles of Trade,' etc., etc."

- 1799 A.D. [877] (TIPPO SULTAN). Series of twenty-five documents found in Tippoo Sultan's palace at Seringapatam after its capture in 1799, shewing his negotiations with the French at Mauritius, and printed for circulation among various high officials.

4to, bound in 1 volume, half calf. (Madras, 1799). £5 5s.

These very important documents were found by W. H. Gordon in a trunk among Tippoo Sultan's effects. The copies were attested by Capt. Macaulay, Private Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief, and transmitted to Lt.-Col. Kirkpatrick, Military Secretary to the Governor General. From them it was shewn that Tippoo had sent three Embassies to Mauritius, and from there to the French Directory in 1797, and the following year had sent an Embassy to France whilst he was professing a desire to receive one from the British Government.

These papers came from the Archives of Lord Melville, and were sent to him by Lord Mornington or the Marquis Wellesley on June 7, 1799. Bound in at the beginning are duplicate copies of W. H. Gordon's letter to Wellesley concerning the discovery of the papers 6 pp. 4to, and a 3-page synopsis of their contents. Each of the 25 documents is endorsed "Compared with the Manuscript Copy. G. G. Keble, French Translator."

Engraved portrait & 9 maps & plates.

FIRST EDITIONS. 2 vols. in 1, 4to, calf. London, 1799-1815. £4 4s.

Two of the most important books of travel of modern times. Through the friendship of Sir Joseph Banks, the author was selected by the African Association for exploration in the interior of Africa, and was the first of modern Europeans to reach the well-nigh fabulous waters of the Niger. His books rank as classics in their particular department of literature. After his first expedition Park settled down at Peebles, Scotland, as a doctor. In 1805 he set out on a second Niger expedition at a bad season of the year. His party of 44 Europeans one by one died, and the five survivors, in their endeavours to force their way through to the termination of the Niger, were all drowned in an attempt to escape from a party of attacking natives.

London, Black, Parbury and Allen, 1817. £17 17s.

Raffles' celebrated work is especially valuable for the material it gives relative to the actual condition and manners of the Javanese in those times. His chief title to remembrance now, is that he secured to Great Britain the maritime supremacy of the Eastern Seas. He was instrumental in the purchase of the Island of Singapore, and the foundation of that city, and had his advice been followed Java and Sumatra had probably remained British possessions.

8 vols., 4to, and 4 vols., large folio, uniformly bound in half crimson morocco, gilt, uncut, t. c. g., by Niedrée. Paris, Pillet, 1824-1827. £85

The text comprises the history of the voyages, 3 volumes, Navigation, 2 volumes, Botany, Zoology, and Scientific Observations on the Pendulum.

"In 1817 Louis de Freycinet was sent out to the South Seas in command of the Uranie and the Physicienne. This expedition visited Australia, reaching Sydney in 1819, and produced an atlas of superb charts, which renewed French interest in Australia, and consequently renewed also British fears of a French occupation." Freycinet first touched Australia at Endracht's Land, in the extreme North-West, and at Dirk-Hartighs Island recovered a pewter plate which Vlamingh, the commander of the "Endracht," had fastened on a tree in 1616, and on which he announced the Dutch Discovery of the Island; this Freycinet took back to France with him. He then proceeded to the Dutch Colonies and to some islands off the N.W. coast of New Guinea, the Caroline Islands, Marianas, Hawaiian Islands, and New South Wales. Brazil and the Falkland Islands were also visited, and a number of interesting views of Rio de Janeiro, etc., are given.

FIRST EDITION. 4to, calf. London, 1829.

£3 3s.

A very famous book of Travels.

Burckhardt was one of the greatest of modern travellers; born at Lausanne in 1784, he came to England in 1806 and studied Arabic. He volunteered to carry on the work of exploration of the "Association for promoting the Discovery of the Interior of Africa," and went out to Syria in the guise of a Mohammedan trader of India to continue his knowledge of Arabic. He travelled in Syria for two or three years studying, and went on to Cairo in 1812. He made the pilgrimage to Mecca, being the first European to visit that City, and died from dysentery at Cairo in 1817, being buried in the Mohammedan cemetery.

Richard Burton and Hurgonje afterwards were also successful in visiting Mecca as Mohammedan pilgrims.

 Small 4to, bound by a Japanese binder in half morocco.
Kiyoto, Published by Niara, the sixth year of Meija, 1873. £7 10s.
 An extremely curious guide book by a Japanese author for the use of English and American visitors to the Kioto Exhibition of 1873. The English throughout is very amusing. The author commences with an account of Sanjio, and begins: "As Sanjio, third bridge across Kamogawa, is the most convenient situation to limit and count the distance to all directions; and as it is the habit that a citizen will tell you with this bridge when you ask him how many Chios it is from Kiyoto to Otsu or Fushimi, and, so I will mention the distance from this bridge, to all places."

- 1877 A.D. [1155] WYLIE (Alexander). Journal of H. E. Koh Sung-taon, Ambassador from China to England; translated from the Chinese by Alexander Wylie, with a long introduction.

The Original Manuscript in the Autograph of the Translator.

64 leaves, folio, half morocco. Circa 1877.

£10 10s.

A most interesting journal. Wylie's "Introductory Chapter" extends to 15 pp., in which he gives a synopsis of other Chinese narratives of travels.

Koh Sung-taon's embassy to England was on account of the massacre of the interpreter attached to the British Expedition of 1875 which crossed China from Burmah to Bhamo.

Wylie writes:—

"The intelligent appreciation of European institutions shewn by his Excellency, his ready adaptation to the novel circumstances in which he is placed, and the general suavity and good feeling that have marked his intercourse with all who have been brought into contact with him, have gained for him the esteem of Englishmen, and form a guarantee of the power for good that his influence will exert in his own country.

"We venture to think that such will be the estimate of those who read this first instalment of his journal since leaving China. The variety of topics touched upon, and the candour with which he compares the progress of the West, with the stagnant institutions of his own country, are apt to take us by surprise, as coming from an Oriental, and a native of one of the most conservative of Empires.

"The geography, the politics, the manners and customs, of almost every country on the way, come in for cursory remarks; and scarcely a day passes—of what appears to have been a voyage of much suffering—that he does not introduce some topic of interest; taking up by turns most of the great questions that have been recently occupying the attention of the public.

"The subject of the religions of the World come in for a share of attention also, but on this head, his ideas are but hazy. The conclusion he comes to is that the country of Confucius will compare favourably among the kingdoms of the Globe, in its universal toleration of creeds of every caste."

The Chinese Ambassador describes his visits to Hongkong, Singapore, Penang, Ceylon, etc., remarks on a German South Sea Expedition and on an English Arctic Expedition; passes most curious and interesting comments on the Protestant and Roman Catholic Religions, comparing them with the Mohammedan and Chinese Religions; and writes in a curious and entertaining manner of many other subjects and places which engaged his interest during the voyage.

Presentation copy to the French Minister in Lisbon, signed by the Secretary of the Commissao Portugues da Exposição Colombina.

Duarte Pacheco was one of the greatest heroes in Portuguese History, and was especially famous for his defence of Cochim with 900 Portuguese against an army of 50,000 natives in 1503.

On his return to Portugal in 1505 he wrote his celebrated work "Esmeraldo de situ orbis." This remained in Manuscript for hundreds of years, and was published at the fourth centenary of Columbus.

The work itself is a Cosmography and guide to Navigation, and contains many important details concerning the early navigation of the Portuguese, more especially concerning Africa and the route to India.

With 2 large folding maps, 3 smaller maps, and 33 plates, some coloured.

Large Paper Copy. 2 vols., royal 8vo, original half vellum.

London, 1901.

£3 10s.

One of a hundred large paper copies. A most important work for the history of early exploration in the East Indian Archipelago, divided into seven parts, including the six accounts of the voyage.

1. Hernando Gallego's true and correct account of the voyage to the Western Isles.

2. Pedro Sarmiento's account.

3. Consecutive Account of all that happened in the Discovery of the Islands which Sr. Alvaro Davendaña went to discover, 1567-8.

4. Alvaro de Mendaña's second narrative of the discovery, sent to Philip II of Spain.

5. Account of Mendaña's voyage in quest of New Guinea.

6. Gomez Hres. Catoira's (Chief Purser) account of the voyage and discoveries.

7. Particular Account given to Capt. Fr. de Cadres by an Indian named Chepo; followed by a strange account of a ship driven to an Island in Latitude 18°, along which she cruized for 50 days.

The Solomon Islands were the first of the large Pacific Groups to be discovered, and the last to be explored. In 1568 Mendaña's expedition sailed from Peru by order of the Spanish Government, spent six months among the Solomon Islands, and brought back to Peru a remarkably accurate account of its explorations yet for 200 years the islands were lost to Europeans, and their existence even doubted.

With 16 plates and a map.
FIRST EDITION. 8vo, buckram, uncut. London, 1927. £4 10s.
"In this book Colonel Lawrence has at last told the world the extraordinary story of the War in Arabia, 1916-18, and of his own part in uniting and leading the Arab tribes to victory over the Turks, ending with the day of Allenby's smashing break through in Palestine and the Allies' entrance into Damascus. It is a narrative of facts and deeds for the English speaking peoples, of things made possible by one man's audacity and endurance, and of the initiative, resourcefulness and pluck of the little band of English officers who later joined Lawrence and were attached to the Arab army. 'All the world knows how Lawrence picked up his honour and glory,' says one of his comrades, Major Herbert Young, 'Riding alone in the desert, or with a handful of Arab companions, he made a name for himself as no other European has made in Arabia, or, indeed, in any other part of the world since the great Elizabethan adventurers. No one will quite know how he did it.'"
"The book presents an extraordinary picture, vivid in line and colour, and gripping in actuality, first of the life led by Lawrence amid the Arab tribesmen in their desert raids against the Turks, rushing posts and garrisons, dynamiting railway tracks and bridges, on forced marches, feasting, looting-mad, fighting on foot or on camel back, and, secondly, of the detailed operations worked out and controlled by the English officers and Feisal's staff which opened the road to Damascus. It is an extraordinary picture of war in its vivid and compelling strength, and no less extraordinary in this record, veiled by the author's modesty, of hardship, endurance and danger in his two years of life among the Arabs."
